

The Nephilim

Genesis 6 begins with a tale of intermarriage between the “sons of God” and the “daughters of men”. This union created giants, or “nephilim” in Hebrew. This intermarriage was so evil that it prompted a terrible punishment from the Lord and led to the great Flood. The question is, who were these giants? This is not a topic that is commonly discussed but I believe it's worth investigating.

Let's start by taking a look at the passage itself:

Genesis 6:1: “And it came to pass, when men began to multiply on the face of the earth, and daughters were born unto them,

2 That the sons of God saw the daughters of men that they were fair; and they took them wives of all which they chose.

3 And the Lord said, My spirit shall not always strive with man, for that he also is flesh: yet his days shall be a hundred and twenty years.

4 There were giants<sup>5303</sup> in the earth in those days; and also after that, when the sons of God came in unto the daughters of men, and they bare children to them, the same became mighty men<sup>1368</sup> which were of old, men of renown.”

There are a few interesting things about this passage. First of all, no “daughters of God” married “sons of men” – it went strictly the other way. Second, the union resulted only in sons. None of the children became “mighty women” and there is no evidence that any daughters were born to these couples. That in itself is quite strange and hints that something unusual is going on.

Some claim that the “sons of God” refers to godly men and the “daughters of men” refers to sinful women, and that the passage is speaking about the dangers of marrying unbelievers. But if that is the case then why weren't any daughters born to these couples and why did their offspring become giants? Verse 4 clearly says that each one of these children became “mighty men” of extraordinary ability. All of these facts make it highly unlikely that this is a simple case of believers marrying unbelievers. I think that something else is going on – something quite unusual and disturbing.

We can learn a little more about what is going on by examining the passage's key words. In Hebrew, they are:

Mighty men: 1368. Powerful, warrior, tyrant, champion, chief, giant, mighty, strong.

Giants: 5303. Hebrew: “nephil”. “It means a bully, a tyrant, a giant. It appears three times in the OT (Gen 6:4, Num 13:33). Since the etymology is uncertain, there is much speculation among reputable scholars concerning the nature of these individuals. Until more evidence becomes available, perhaps it is wise to do as the RSV and NIV translations did: render it “Nephilim”.

Right away we can see that we've stumbled across a mystery. The very definition of the Hebrew word “nephil” is so fraught with uncertainty that scholars recommend the word remain untranslated! Once again, if these people are simply humans then why is there all this mystery? If the author had wanted to describe sinful people then there are a lot of clear and well-understood Hebrew words that he could have used, but instead he chose a word that is cloaked in mystery and uncertainty. There is clearly something significant going on here.

For the record, the only other use of the word “nephilim” (giants) in the Bible can be found here:

Numbers 13:33: “And there we saw the giants, the sons of Anak, which come of the giants: and we were in our own sight as grasshoppers, and so we were in their sight.”

Notice the description of these beings. The Israeli spies reported that the nephilim were giants of extraordinary size, which matches the description in Genesis 6. These were clearly not normal people and the Israelites were terrified at the sight of them. Of course, this just deepens the mystery. What is going on here?

I believe the key to understanding this passage can be found in the use of the phrase “sons of God”. Each nephilim had two parents: a “son of God” and a “daughter of man”. The phrase “daughter of man” literally means “female”, so that's easy enough to understand. But who were the sons of God? As it turns out, that phrase is used in exactly three other places in the Old Testament. All three occur in the book of Job, and in each case the phrase refers to angels:

Job 1:6: “Now there was a day when the sons of God came to present themselves before the Lord, and Satan came also among them.”

Job 2:1: “Again there was a day when the sons of God came to present themselves before the Lord, and Satan came also among them to present himself before the Lord.”

Job 38:4: “Where was thou when I laid the foundations of the earth? Declare, if thou hast understanding.

5 Who hath laid the measures thereof, if thou knowest? Or who hath stretched the line upon it?

6 Whereupon are the foundations thereof fastened? Or who laid the corner stone thereof;

7 When the morning stars sang together, and all the sons of God shouted for joy?”

As you can see, in each case the beings known as the “sons of God” are angels, not men. It's true that in the New Testament believers are called “sons of God” (John 1:12) but at the time when Genesis 6:1-4 was written that was not the case. Nowhere in the entire Old Testament are human beings ever referred to as “sons of God”. Job is one of the oldest books of the Bible and it is not a stretch to imagine that the Hebrew phrase “sons of God” carries the same meaning in both Job and Genesis. Therefore, if “sons of God” means “angels” in Job then it also means “angels” in Genesis 6. In this particular case it refers to fallen angels, or demons. If the nephilim were the product of a demonic father and a human mother then they would be half-demon and half-human. It's no wonder they were beings of terrible power and breathtaking evil!

It's also worth noting the difference between a “son of man” and a “son of God”: sons of men are born while sons of God are created. A son of God refers to a being that was created directly by God Himself, which would include Adam and the angels. Once Christ appeared He made it possible for others to become “sons of God” by becoming Christians, but that was not an option in the Old Testament. (Many Old Testament people were saved, but none of them were ever called sons of God. That only started happening in the New Testament after the appearance of Christ.) Aside from Adam and Eve, all humans are born from human parents and are not created by a direct act of divine will.

(As a side-note, notice that all angels were created directly by God Himself. Angels do not have other angels as parents, nor do they bear offspring. They were all divinely created and therefore they are all “sons of God”).

Some have objected to this interpretation and say that in the New Testament Jesus says that angels are not given in marriage:

Mark 12:25: “For when they shall rise from the dead, they neither marry, nor are given in marriage; but are as the angels which are in heaven.”

That statement is true: the angels which are in Heaven do not marry. However, the Bible never says that angels are incapable of intermarrying with humans, nor does it say that fallen angels never marry on Earth. What is clear is that they are not allowed to marry humans, and that doing so is a great sin that damns the angel for all of eternity. It is not surprising that angels don't marry in Heaven because in Heaven the Lord's will is done. Demons, however, have no interest in doing the Lord's will.

I believe Genesis 6 teaches that in the days before the Flood, demons intermarried with humans and produced a new race of powerful, evil beings. This race (which was composed entirely of men) was destroyed by the Flood, which wiped out everyone except for the line of Noah. What's particularly interesting about this is that Noah's genealogy did not include any of these “sons of God”. This is critically important because the Messiah had to be a pure human. No Messiah could be part human, part God, and part demon!

Incidentally, this is what the Bible means when it says that Noah was perfect in his generations:

Genesis 6:9: “These are the generations of Noah: Noah was a just man and perfect in his generations, and Noah walked with God.”

First, the verse says that Noah was just, which means exactly that. It then goes on to say that he was “perfect in his generations”. What that actually means is that he was perfect in his genetic lineage – in other words, he was a purebred human and had no demons in his ancestry. That is one of the reasons why the lineage in Genesis 5 is so important – it clearly demonstrates that Noah (and therefore, the Messiah) did not have any demonic ancestors.

The nephilim were actually a clever plan by Satan: he was trying to corrupt the genetic line of man in order to make it impossible for the Messiah to come. God solved that problem by wiping out the nephilim in the Flood. In this context the Flood makes a lot of sense – it was vital for everything that was tainted by demonic DNA to be wiped out. Of course, Satan wasn't content with attempting this just once; he later tried it again in the land of Canaan in order to stop the Israelites from entering the Promised Land. This could be another reason why God ordered every last Canaanite destroyed – He wanted the nephilim to be wiped out.

There are a couple of other passages that may be related to the nephilim. The first one can be found in 2 Peter:

2 Peter 2:4: “For if God spared not the angels that sinned, but cast them down to hell<sup>5020</sup>, and delivered them into chains of darkness, to be reserved unto judgment; 5 And spared not the old world, but saved Noah the eighth person, a preacher of righteousness, bringing in the flood upon the world of the ungodly;”

The word that is used for “hell” in this passage is a very special one that is used only in this one passage. This is its definition:

Hell: 5020. “Found only in its verbal form in 2 Peter 2:4, meaning to consign to Tartarus (which is neither Sheol of the OT, nor Hades of the NT, nor Gehenna, nor hell, but the place where certain angels are confined, reserved unto judgment). This punishment for these angels is because of their special sin.”

Notice what this says here. These fallen angels (or demons) are confined to a special place called Tartarus. This is actually not the same “hell” that we’re all familiar with. When people die without accepting Jesus they go to hell, not Tartarus. Tartarus is a special place that is populated only by demons who committed a very special and terrible sin. To put it another way, there are actually two hells – the normal one and Tartarus. Humans cannot be sent to Tartarus. It is reserved strictly for a special class of demons.

Now it’s obvious that there are many demons that are not bound in Tartarus. Quite a few of them wander over the surface of the Earth and cause all sorts of horrors. Yet there are some demons who committed a sin so terrible that they are no longer permitted to wander the earth. If this is an accurate reading of the text then what sin did they commit? Isn’t it quite likely that the demons that are spoken of here are the “sons of God” that created the nephilim in Genesis 6, and that their great sin was intermarrying with humans?

I think it’s worth noting that in the very next verse Peter speaks of Noah and the Flood. Isn’t it possible that the two verses are related – that the great sin that these angels committed had something to do with the Flood that destroyed the old world? If fallen angels did intermarry with humans and produced a race of evil offspring then it would make sense that the Lord would judge it, and it would make sense to mention the Flood when referring to this event. It would also be easy to understand why the Lord imprisoned these demons; He didn’t want them to do it again.

There is one other possible mention of this event. It can be found in Jude:

Jude 1:6: “And the angels which kept not their first estate, but left their own habitation<sup>3613</sup>, he hath reserved in everlasting chains under darkness unto the judgment of the great day.

7 Even as Sodom and Gomorrha, and the cities about them in like manner, giving themselves over to fornication, and going after strange flesh, are set forth for an example, suffering the vengeance of eternal fire.”

Here we have another mention of angels that are “reserved in everlasting chains” and waiting for the final judgment. The very next verse speaks of Sodom and Gomorrha and highlights it as a second example of what happens to those who engage in fornication and immorality. Note the use of the phrase “even as”, which indicates that both the angels and Sodom were guilty of the same type of sin. If Jude is speaking of fallen angels that intermarried with humans then this makes a lot of sense, for in that case both the demons and the residents of Sodom were guilty of fornication and gross sexual misconduct.

Interestingly, the Bible seems to indicate that one day the nephilim will return. In the book of Daniel we find this passage:

Daniel 2:43: “And whereas thou sawest iron mixed with miry clay, they shall mingle themselves with the seed of men: but they shall not cleave one to another, even as iron is not mixed with clay.”

Notice the highlighted part: Daniel said that “they” would “mingle themselves with the seed of men”. That’s a rather odd phrase, isn’t it? Who is “they”? What is this verse talking about?

If you look up this verse in other translations you will get mixed results. Some translations preserve this odd phrase (which is a direct translation of the original Aramaic), while others butcher it beyond recognition. The Geneva Bible preserves it, as does the ASV and the NAS. The ESV and the NIV butcher it, though: instead of just translating it they offer their own interpretation of it (although the ESV adds a footnote that points out what the original Aramaic actually says). Incidentally, that is one of many reasons why I dislike the NIV. I don’t want their interpretation of the passage; what I want to know is what the passage actually said.

The original Aramaic really does say “they shall mingle themselves with the seed of men”. This implies that something very strange is going on. If “they” are going to mingle with the “seed of men” then it seems rather obvious that “they” are not part of mankind! Daniel explains that this mingling doesn’t work out very well: the iron and the clay just don’t mix. We humans are clearly the clay; we were made from dust and we return back to dust. These others, though – the “they” – are depicted as being iron, which indicates a much stronger and more powerful race of beings. They are trying to mix with the clay, but what results is very brittle.

I think this is a reference to the nephilim. Before the Flood, the demons intermarried with humans and produced a race that was neither human nor demon – it was a mixture of “iron” and “clay”. When Daniel gave this prophecy he was speaking about things that will take place in the end-times. In other words, what happened before is going to happen again: the nephilim are going to come back.

Interestingly, Christ told us that just before the Second Coming things would be like they were in the days of Noah:

Matthew 24:37: “But as the days of Noah were, so shall also the coming of the Son of man be.

38 For as in the days that were before the flood they were eating and drinking, marrying and giving in marriage, until the day that Noe entered into the ark,
39 And knew not until the flood came, and took them all away; so shall also the coming of the Son of man be.”

Just as people were going about their lives right up until the Flood came and killed them all, so people will be going about their lives right up until Jesus returns. But there are other parallels as well. Just as the Flood was God’s judgment upon a wicked world, so the Tribulation will be God’s judgment on a wicked world. Just as Enoch was taken from Earth and spared having to live through the Flood, so the Church will be taken from the Earth and be spared having to live through the Tribulation. Finally, in the days before the Flood demons intermingled themselves with the seed of men – and we are told that in the last days “they” will intermingle themselves with the seed of men.

Some people have speculated that this might tie into the Mark of the Beast. One of the puzzling things about the Mark is that whoever takes it cannot be saved; they are lost forever and there is no way to repent of it. The Bible is very clear that taking the Mark is unforgivable:

Revelation 14:9: “And the third angel followed them, saying with a loud voice, If any man worship the beast and his image, and receive his mark in his forehead, or in his hand,

10 The same shall drink of the wine of the wrath of God, which is poured out without mixture into the cup of his indignation; and he shall be tormented with fire and brimstone in the presence of the holy angels, and in the presence of the Lamb:

11 And the smoke of their torment ascendeth up for ever and ever: and they have no rest day nor night, who worship the beast and his image, and whosoever receiveth the mark of his name.”

Whoever takes the Mark will face the eternal and unending wrath of God. There is no forgiveness for this sin – only the certainty of unending fiery judgment. But how is that possible? Why would taking the Mark condemn someone for all of eternity? After all, isn't the blood of Jesus sufficient to cover all of our sins? Why would this sin be any different?

Here is something to think about: the reason the blood of Jesus can save us is because Jesus became a man. Jesus had to become a man in order to die in our place; the sacrifice only worked because He was fully man and fully God. His sacrifice, however, is only good for mankind. As I have discussed elsewhere, His death cannot provide atonement for fallen angels. Since the nephilim are not purebred humans, Christ's atoning sacrifice would not work for them. Someone who is partly demonic (not just demon-possessed but actually demonic) would not be eligible for salvation.

You may not realize this, but there is actually a great deal of research going on in a field called transhumanism. The purpose of this research is to alter the human genetic code to create people who are “trans-human” – in other words, to create humans that are no longer human beings. Transhumanists believe that mankind can perfect itself and attain both godhood and immortality by altering our DNA. If we just combine our own DNA with a combination of DNA from the animal kingdom and synthetic DNA, we can create a race of beings that are smarter, faster, stronger, and that live forever.

Scientists have made a staggering amount of progress toward this goal. Not only have they learned how to create purely synthetic DNA, but they have already started experimenting with combining animal DNA with human DNA to create something that is neither animal nor human. They have even found a mechanism that can be used to alter the DNA of living, adult human beings. People are very serious about this:

The ability to tinker with our genes offers the astounding promise – and peril – of immortality, which mythically has been the defining difference between gods and mortals. It also offers the possibility of an even greater variety of breeds of humans than there is of dogs. (Joel Garreau, Radical Evolution)

The prospect of building godlike creatures fills me with a sense of religious awe that goes to the very depth of my soul and motivates me powerfully to continue, despite the possible horrible negative consequences. (Prof. Hugo de Garis, artificial brain designer)

There are large groups of people who are committed to making this a reality. Imagine if, halfway through the Tribulation, there is an announcement made that science has had a tremendous breakthrough. Immortality is now possible – all you need to do is take the Mark, which will rewrite your DNA. You will then become a superhuman – a new race of being.

If this comes to pass then Satan will have invented a new sin – one that cannot be forgiven.

After all, your sins can only be covered if you are a human being. If the devil can trick people into altering themselves on a DNA level so that they are no longer human, then the sacrifice of Christ would no longer apply. They would be beyond redemption for all of eternity. Once you crossed that line (and scientists are working day and night to cross it!) you would be permanently lost.

In summary, Genesis 6 teaches that before the Flood, demons took human women for wives and had children with them, producing a strange, fallen, depraved race called the nephilim. The Lord judged this act of wickedness by destroying that race in the Flood and imprisoning the demons who committed this sin in Tartarus, awaiting judgment in the last day.
