

1 Samuel 30

In 1 Samuel 30, David had just returned home. At this point in his life he was on the run from King Saul. Since Saul was determined to find David and kill him, he took refuge in Philistine territory.

One day the Philistines went to war against Israel. David tried to join them in their fight but the Philistines were uneasy about having him in their midst because they remembered all the times David led Saul's army to victory against them. Rather than let David fight for them against Israel, they made him return home.

When David returned home he found bad news. David and his men had left their families and possessions in the town of Ziklag – but when they arrived they found that everything was gone. The Amalekites had raided the town, kidnapped everyone, stolen all their possessions, and then burned the town to the ground:

1 Samuel 30:1-2: “And it came to pass, when David and his men were come to Ziklag on the third day, that the Amalekites had invaded the south, and Ziklag, and smitten Ziklag, and burned it with fire; And had taken the women captives, that were therein: they slew not any, either great or small, but carried them away, and went on their way.”

To David this must have seemed like an exceptionally cruel blow. In David's youth he was a shepherd until the day Samuel anointed him as the next king over Israel – and ever since then his life had become increasingly difficult. For example, when he went to the front lines to bring food for his brothers, his older brother immediately started yelling at him – even though

David hadn't done anything wrong:

1 Samuel 17:28-29: “And Eliab his eldest brother heard when he spake unto the men; and Eliab's anger was kindled against David, and he said, Why camest thou down hither? and with whom hast thou left those few sheep in the wilderness? I know thy pride, and the naughtiness of thine heart; for thou art come down that thou mightest see the battle. And David said, What have I now done? Is there not a cause?”

Eliab refused to fight Goliath or take a stand against Israel's enemies, but he was willing to yell at David. David ignored his older brother, fought Goliath, and killed him. After that amazing victory the people praised him – and that caused King Saul to become suspicious of David:

1 Samuel 18:6-9: “And it came to pass as they came, when David was returned from the slaughter of the Philistine, that the women came out of all cities of Israel, singing and dancing, to meet king Saul, with tabrets, with joy, and with instruments of musick. And the women answered one another as they played, and said, Saul hath slain his thousands, and David his ten thousands. And Saul was very wroth, and the saying displeased him; and he said, They have ascribed unto David ten thousands, and to me they have ascribed but thousands: and what can he have more but the kingdom? And Saul eyed David from that day and forward.”

Keep in mind that David had just saved Israel from the Philistines. He had fought and killed Goliath, which was something no one else in the entire country was willing to do. In reward Saul had promised him the hand of his daughter in marriage. Did Saul keep that promise? Absolutely not. Instead of rewarding David, the very next day Saul tried to kill him:

1 Samuel 18:10-11: “And it came to pass on the morrow, that the evil spirit from God came upon Saul, and he prophesied in the midst of the house: and David played with his hand, as at other times: and there was a javelin in Saul's hand. And Saul cast the javelin; for he said, I will smite David even to the wall with it. And David avoided out of his presence twice.”

After this incident Saul spent the rest of his life trying to kill David! We don't have the time to go over all the evil things that Saul did, but it's quite a long list. The king forced David to run for his life, and after he was gone Saul took David's wife and gave her to someone else:

1 Samuel 25:44: “But Saul had given Michal his daughter, David's wife, to Phalti the son of Laish, which was of Gallim.”

Did the Mosaic Law allow King Saul to take someone's wife and give her to another man? Nope. Michal was David's wife, but Saul didn't care. The king was determined to do whatever he wanted.

So David was forced into exile. He was the anointed king of Israel, but that had only made his life worse. David had lost his home, his wife, and his possessions. He had to be constantly on the run because Saul was trying to kill him. It was a very bad life.

While David was hiding from the king he tried to do what was right. For example, Saul refused to defend Keilah when the Philistines came against them because he was too busy trying to kill David. Instead David defended the town and defeated the Philistines. In return for this amazing act of generosity the people of Keilah decided to betray David to Saul and have him killed:

1 Samuel 23:12: “Then said David, Will the men of Keilah deliver me and my men into the hand of Saul? And the Lord said, They will deliver thee up.”

David couldn't find a home no matter where he went in Israel. Even when he risked his life to save his fellow countrymen, those very people immediately betrayed David to Saul. There was no safe place for him in Israel, so David fled to the country of the Philistines.

Amazingly, he was able to find refuge there. Although the Israelites refused to allow David to live among them, a foreign country that David had defeated in battle was willing to give him a place to live! David had lost his country on top of everything else, but at least he had a safe place to live.

Now remember, David was the anointed king of Israel. That should have meant something, but in practice that promise only made his life worse. David had lost everything he had and been driven from his home, but at least now he had a new place to live. He had lost his wife, but God had given him another one. Perhaps David could start over in the land of the Philistines and find peace – except one day he returned to Ziklag and found that everything was gone.

Imagine how you would feel if you were in David's position. God had given you a magnificent promise, but instead of helping you that promise cost you everything and forced you to live in the land of your enemies. You tried to do the right thing, but your every act of goodness was rewarded with evil. You obeyed the law and risked your life to save your countrymen, but in return the government did its very best to murder you.

This was a devastating blow. David had now lost everything – again. It seems that once again God had taken everything David had and left him with nothing:

1 Samuel 30:3: “So David and his men came to the city, and, behold, it was burned with fire; and their wives, and their sons, and their daughters, were taken captives.”

It was all gone. Where was the mighty God who was supposed to watch over David? All he had seen so far in his life was his enemies emerge victorious against him again and again. Once again the wicked had won and David had lost. What good was being righteous? What good was following the Lord? Saul was still king over Israel and David was still on the run. Saul had the entire nation and everything he wanted while David had lost all he ever had – twice.

In response to this terrible tragedy, all his men could do was weep:

1 Samuel 30:4: “Then David and the people that were with him lifted up their voice and wept, until they had no more power to weep.”

David's followers were extremely upset. In fact, they were so upset over the loss of everything they ever loved and cared about that they wanted to kill David:

1 Samuel 30:6: “And David was greatly distressed; for the people spake of stoning him, because the soul of all the people was grieved, every man for his sons and for his daughters...”

Even the few allies that David had were now talking about murdering him! David had nothing left – no friends, no family, and no possessions. The whole world was against him. Where was God in David's hour of need?

It would have been easy for David to walk away from God at this point. It would have been easy for him to lose faith and decided that God's promises were worthless. After all, up to this point in his life he hadn't seen a single one of God's promises come true. His life had only gotten progressively worse.

There are many righteous and godly people who have gone through times of tremendous suffering. Some people have lost children, spouses, and beloved family members. Sometimes life just comes crashing down and it seems there isn't anything left. Even though they've faithfully served God and done what was right, God still took everything they ever cared about. It may seem that the only thing they have to show for their life of righteousness is pain and suffering and loss.

When this happens and God tests their faith, some people choose to reject Him. Since God allowed a loved one to die instead of recover, He must not exist – or if He exists then He's evil. They decide that since God hasn't lived up to their expectations and done what they wanted Him to do, they're going to reject Him.

The truth is that God cares so much about our faith that He's going to test it. There are times when God puts us in situations that reveal whether our faith is genuine or a fraud. Although God already knows whether our faith is real or not, we don't. When God tests us we find out if we'll trust Him no matter what, or if we'll only trust Him as long as He does whatever we want Him to do:

1 Peter 1:6-7: “Wherein ye greatly rejoice, though now for a season, if need be, ye are in heaviness through manifold temptations: That the trial of your faith, being much more precious than of gold that perisheth, though it be tried with fire, might be found unto praise and honour and glory at the appearing of Jesus Christ:”

If we only trust God when things are going the way we want then we don't really trust Him at all! After all, the word “trust” has no meaning if we're happy and God is only doing things that we like! The only time we need to trust someone is when something happens that we don't understand. Are we willing to trust God when things go wrong? Are we willing to trust Him when He takes away the things that we love most and leaves us with nothing? Those are the moment when we find out if our faith is real.

Not all faith is real. God deliberately tests us – not so that He can discover the truth about our faith, but so that we can know what sort of faith we have. After all, God knows all things. He already knows if our faith is just a fraud. But it's easy for us to deceive ourselves.

David was faced with an exceptionally difficult test. What would you have done if you were in his position? If God took away your wife, your children, and all your possessions; if He took away your country and your friends; and if those who used to be your allies now sought to kill you – would you still trust God? Would you still believe in His promises? Would you still believe that God was good?

David had reached an exceptionally difficult part of his life. In his great hour of pain he did something amazing. Instead of turning against the Lord he actually sought Him instead:

1 Samuel 30:6b: “...but David encouraged himself in the Lord his God.”

When faced with times of great trial, there are some people who choose to turn against God. They reject Him and seek comfort elsewhere. David did exactly the opposite. When he lost everything and his friends were calling for his execution, David sought comfort in the Lord. In his hour of need David sought the Lord. That was exactly the right thing to do! David's source of strength was the Lord. He still trusted in God and he still had faith in Him. David believed that God would give him the strength he needed to see this through to the end.

David had no idea what was going to happen. He didn't know how his life would turn out or how the day would end. But he did trust the Lord, and in his hour of trial he sought the Lord. David didn't know what to do but he did know who to turn to. He asked the Lord what to do next – and the Lord gave him guidance:

1 Samuel 30:7-8: “And David said to Abiathar the priest, Ahimelech's son, I pray thee, bring me hither the ephod. And Abiathar brought thither the ephod to David. And David enquired at the Lord, saying, Shall I pursue after this troop? shall I overtake them? And he answered him, Pursue: for thou shalt surely overtake them, and without fail recover all.”

In this situation David didn't do whatever he thought was best. Instead he stopped and asked the Lord what course of action he should take.

Before we get too excited about this we need to put this into context. When this took place the Bible was still incomplete. Most of the Old Testament (and all of the New Testament) hadn't been written yet. At this time the tabernacle was still in operation and God had given Israel something called the Urim and the Thummim. The priests could use those mysterious objects to ask God questions and get specific answers back. Essentially, the people had the ability to send God a letter and receive a written reply. This is completely different from the modern practice of prayer.

We no longer have the ability to use the Urim and the Thummim to get text messages from God. The reason God brought that system to an end was because He gave us something better – the completed Word of God:

1 Timothy 3:16-17: “All scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness: That the man of God may be perfect, thoroughly furnished unto all good works."

This is one of the key verses in the Bible – and one that we need to take to heart. What part of the Bible is inspired? All of it. What part of the Bible is useful? All of it. What information does the Bible give us? Enough to enable us to do all good works.

What this means is that the Scriptures have given us all the information we need to live a life that pleases the Lord! God doesn't need to tell us anything else because He's already told us everything. The Bible doesn't lack any information we need to live a life that pleases God. It's true there are additional things we would like to know, but there's nothing we need to know that we weren't told.

In David's time the Bible hadn't been completed. He didn't have access to the full revelation from God. Since no one did in those days, God allowed people to ask Him questions and He would respond with direct answers. The Lord no longer does that because He's put everything we need in His Word.

If this seems confusing then stop and think about it. If God continued to give us new divine revelation then that would mean His Word was insufficient. It would mean we need to know things that He left out of the Bible – which would mean the Bible does not tell us everything we need to do all good works. If that was true then 1 Timothy 3:16-17 would be a lie! Since we know God doesn't lie, that means the Bible is sufficient. Therefore, when someone comes to us with something like the Book of Mormon and claims that God has given other revelation that we need, we can immediately know that they're wrong. God has given us everything we need!

Should Christians still pray? Absolutely. Prayer is vital. But we must understand that when we pray God isn't going to send us a new letter in the mail with additional divine revelation. There are many ways God watches over us and uses His providence to guide us, but God isn't going to give us new revelation. There's no need for that because God has already given us everything we need to know in His Word.

In response to David's question, the Lord told David that he should pursue the Amalekites because if he pursued them he would recover everything that had been taken. That must have been very encouraging news to David and his men! They had suffered a great loss but God promised they would recover all that had been taken. However, there was a problem. Some of David's men lacked the strength to go after the enemy:

1 Samuel 30:9-10: "So David went, he and the six hundred men that were with him, and came to the brook Besor, where those that were left behind stayed. But David pursued, he and four hundred men: for two hundred abode behind, which were so faint that they could not go over the brook Besor."

This isn't surprising. Imagine how devastated you would be if you came home and learned that you had lost everything, including your spouse and children. News which is that devastating could easily drain all of a person's strength leave them unable to do anything at all. When a time of crisis comes, some people are overcome by it and can't do anything about it. When that happens it's critical for those who are strong to care for those who are weak. Two hundred men were too weak to fight – so the rest of the men went to fight on their behalf.

There may be times in our life when we're strong and are able to fight for others. When those times come we need to take a stand for them and serve them in their hour of need. After all, there may come a time when we are the weak ones who need others to stand on our behalf! That's how the body of Christ ought to work – with its members taking care of one another and seeking to serve one another.

David and his men pursued the enemy but they didn't know exactly where the enemy was. The Lord provided for them by putting an Egyptian in their path:

1 Samuel 30:11-14: “And they found an Egyptian in the field, and brought him to David, and gave him bread, and he did eat; and they made him drink water; And they gave him a piece of a cake of figs, and two clusters of raisins: and when he had eaten, his spirit came again to him: for he had eaten no bread, nor drunk any water, three days and three nights. And David said unto him, To whom belondest thou? and whence art thou? And he said, I am a young man of Egypt, servant to an Amalekite; and my master left me, because three days ago I fell sick. We made an invasion upon the south of the Cherethites, and upon the coast which belongeth to Judah, and upon the south of Caleb; and we burned Ziklag with fire.”

Notice the amazing providence of God! David and his men wanted to recover their families, but they had no idea where the enemy was hiding. The reason they found this Egyptian was because he had become sick three days earlier and his master heartlessly abandoned him to die. When did he become sick? Three days ago – which was before David realized he had a problem! God had providentially moved to help David recover everything which had been taken before David even prayed about it! Three days earlier David didn't know he had a problem, but God was already working to resolve it. The illness of this Egyptian wasn't an accident.

Could this Egyptian show David where the Amalekites were encamped? He certainly could:

1 Samuel 30:15: “And David said to him, Canst thou bring me down to this company? And he said, Swear unto me by God, that thou wilt neither kill me, nor deliver me into the hands of my master; and I will bring thee down to this company.”

The Egyptian kept his word. He led David and his band of 400 people directly to the camp of the Amalekites. Now, an army of 400 is very small, but God is able to do great things through small groups. The Lord doesn't need a mighty force to provide mighty deliverance! It's often the case that God uses small people to do great things because in those cases it's clear that the victory was won by the power of the Lord instead of the power of man. David and his men found the Amalekites at precisely the right time:

1 Samuel 30:16: “And when he had brought him down, behold, they were spread abroad upon all the earth, eating and drinking, and dancing, because of all the great spoil that they had taken out of the land of the Philistines, and out of the land of Judah.”

When David found them the Amalekites weren't prepared for war. In fact, they were in the middle of a feast and were drunk out of their minds. That made them easy targets! David and his men spent an entire day killing them, and only a few escaped:

1 Samuel 30:17: “And David smote them from the twilight even unto the evening of the next day: and there escaped not a man of them, save four hundred young men, which rode upon camels, and fled.”

This was an astounding victory. David's small force was vastly outnumbered and yet they won. God did exactly what He said He would do and gave them the victory. True to His word, every last thing was recovered:

1 Samuel 30:19: “And there was nothing lacking to them, neither small nor great, neither sons nor daughters, neither spoil, nor any thing that they had taken to them: David recovered all.”

God promised that everything would be recovered, and just as God said everything was recovered.

You might think this would be a cause for great rejoicing, and it was – but there was a problem. Four hundred men went with David to recover everything but two hundred men were too weak to join the fight. When the battle was over and everyone was on their way home, the group of 400 tried to keep all the loot for themselves and leave the group of 200 with nothing:

1 Samuel 30:22: “Then answered all the wicked men and men of Belial, of those that went with David, and said, Because they went not with us, we will not give them ought of the spoil that we have recovered, save to every man his wife and his children, that they may lead them away, and depart.”

Keep in mind that the “spoil” which had been recovered was the possessions of the people of Ziklag. In other words, those wicked men wanted to keep the possessions of those 200 people! They wanted to be like the Amalekites and take things from their neighbors that didn't belong to them. They didn't want to restore the things that had been stolen.

David refused to allow that. He forced his men to give the 200 people their stuff back:

1 Samuel 30:23-25: “Then said David, Ye shall not do so, my brethren, with that which the Lord hath given us, who hath preserved us, and delivered the company that came against us into our hand. For who will hearken unto you in this matter? but as his part is that goeth down to the battle, so shall his part be that tarrieth by the stuff: they shall part alike. And it was so from that day forward, that he made it a statute and an ordinance for Israel unto this day.”

The Lord was with David. It's true that he had suffered a devastating loss, but God was with him through it every step of the way. There are times in our life when God doesn't prevent hard times from coming, but when those trials come God accompanies us through them. God helped David recover all that had been lost, and He put His plan in motion before David even discovered the loss in the first place! The Lord gave David and his men a mighty victory and they recovered everything. This chapter may have started with a tremendous loss, but it ended in a tremendous victory – and the reason it ended that way was because David never lost his faith in God.

Incidentally, this isn't the end of the story. Although we're almost out of time I'd like to point out that the chapter doesn't end at verse 25. After David and his men recovered everything that had been stolen, David took the opportunity to give gifts to the leaders of Judah:

1 Samuel 30:26: “And when David came to Ziklag, he sent of the spoil unto the elders of Judah, even to his friends, saying, Behold a present for you of the spoil of the enemies of the Lord;”

Why would David do this? Well, we need to remember that while David was fighting the Amalekites, Saul was busy fighting the Philistines. David won his battle against the Amalekites because the Lord was with him and gave him the victory. However, the Lord was not with Saul. When David inquired of the Lord he received an answer, but the Lord refused to answer Saul. So Saul did something incredibly wicked: he used witchcraft and sorcery to try to force God to talk to him. Saul was able to use witchcraft to speak to the dead prophet Samuel, but he had nothing good to tell that wicked man:

1 Samuel 28:16-19: “Then said Samuel, Wherefore then dost thou ask of me, seeing the Lord is departed from thee, and is become thine enemy? And the Lord hath done to him, as he spake by me: for the Lord hath rent the kingdom out of thine hand, and given it to thy neighbour, even to David: Because thou obeyedst not the voice of the Lord, nor executedst his fierce wrath upon Amalek, therefore hath the Lord done this thing unto thee this day. Moreover the Lord will also deliver Israel with thee into the hand of the Philistines: and to morrow shalt thou and thy sons be with me: the Lord also shall deliver the host of Israel into the hand of the Philistines.”

Samuel told Saul that the Lord had departed from him, that God was his enemy, that he was going to lose the battle the next day, and that he was going to be killed. That's exactly what happened. While David pursued the Amalekites, Saul fought the Philistines and lost:

1 Samuel 31:6: “So Saul died, and his three sons, and his armourbearer, and all his men, that same day together.”

By the time David returned to Ziklag with all of the loot, Saul was dead and Judah didn't have a king. That's precisely when David sent gifts to the leaders of Judah. Do you know what those leaders did in response? They made David king:

2 Samuel 2:4: “And the men of Judah came, and there they anointed David king over the house of Judah...”

In other words, David sent them all some really nice gifts, and in return they made him the ruler over the country. I would say those gifts worked out well for David.

When we read 1 Samuel 30 it's easy to overlook how hard that must have been for David. We know how the rest of David's life turned out, but he didn't. David couldn't look into the future and see that he would become king and reign for 40 years. David had no way of knowing that on that very day his enemy Saul was going to die. David didn't know that his troubles were almost over, or that he was just days away from being made king over Judah. From where he stood it looked like he had lost everything – but this was actually the final test before God's promises came true. On the other side of this test was victory. From David's vantage point it looked like he had lost it all, but in reality he was very close to winning. The years of pain were almost over. There was just one more difficult trial to get through, and then a whole new life would begin.

There was no way for David to know that, of course. God didn't tell him that the trials were almost over. But God didn't have to tell David that because David trusted Him! When times were difficult and all seemed lost, David encouraged himself in the Lord. When David had lost everything and was at his lowest point, he went to the Lord – and that's where he found victory.
